

Certified Sci\ART™ Twelve-Tone Personal Colour Tools and Equipment List

Drapes

The colour draping process is vital to personal colour analysis because human colour perception involves both a colour agent (a colour which produces a reaction), and a colour effect (the reaction which is produced by a colour). A personal colour analysis can only be accomplished by a series of contrasts and comparisons. To learn more see chapter 4 of the textbook Understanding Your Colour.

The accurate determination of a human colour tone can only be accomplished visually. A visual analysis can only be accomplished by a series of contrasts and comparisons. This is the colour draping process. The use of accurate testing materials is critical to an accurate colour analysis result.

The most complete offering of accurate colour analysis drapes available anywhere!

- Test Drapes - Gold, Silver, Black, Brown
One (1) set of four (4) fabric scarves (47cm x 82cm) used to test for seasonal placement. Colours represent Winter, Summer, Spring and Autumn.
- Test Drapes - True Seasonal Tones
Each set of five drapes consist of a red, yellow, blue, green, and seasonal white (47cm x 82cm).
- Test Drapes – Red Test
Three (3) sets of test drapes (47cm x 82cm) consisting of four (4) drapes each. Each set represents either a warm, cool, or neutral skin tone. Used to identify neutral tones that border on another seasonal category.
- Test Drapes - The Twelve Tones
Twelve (12) sets of three (3) drapes (47cm x 82cm) Used to identify a tonal classification within a particular season. Example: Winter, True; Winter, Bright; or Winter, Dark.
- The Luxury Set of Drapes
Seven drapes (82cm x 47cm) in each of the twelve tones. Perfect for showing your client how to max and match the colours from their tonal group. Adding these to the twelve tone test drapes makes a total set of 10 drapes for each tonal group.
- The Masterpiece Collection Ten drapes (82cm x 47cm) in each of the twelve tones. Add these to the Luxury Set and you have 17 drapes in each of the 12 tonal groups. Add these to the 12 tone test drapes and you have 13 drapes in each of the 12 tones.

Hand Test Boards

Many clients have a difficult time seeing their own image objectively, and cannot see the subtle colour changes that take place during the analysis. However, when these changes are viewed on their hand rather than their face, it seems to be easier for the client to perceive.

By starting an analysis with the hand test boards, you can show the client the types of colour changes you will be looking for when the actual draping is being done.

Most enjoy and appreciate this introduction to the analysis.

- One set of 20cm x 26cm canvas panels in four test colours. (Winter, Summer, Autumn, Spring).

Neutral Gray Accessories

Add professionalism and accuracy to your analysis.

The accurate way to determine true colour is when the colour is surrounded by neutral grey. Covering the client's hair with a neutral grey cap and the client's clothing with a neutral grey gown makes colour analysis much easier and accurate.

Since the analyst's reflection is also seen, a neutral grey analyst's robe is also available to add professionalism and ease to the analysis.
